

Dodd Undergoes Institute Tests

Associated Press

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.) yesterday was admitted to the National Institute of Health for "continued medical evaluation" following hospitalization from a Feb. 27 breakdown.

Dodd collapsed while filling a speaking engagement at Miami Beach. He was hospitalized for several weeks in Mt. Sinai Hospital there. His condition was ascribed to overwork and exhaustion.

Upon discharge from the Mt. Sinai Hospital the Senator, accompanied by Mrs. Dodd, stayed at an undisclosed place in Florida for recuperation.

The Senator returned here Saturday. An aide said there was no indication how long the new tests might last or when Dodd might be able to resume his senatorial duties.
